FINE ART AND JEWELLERY

Many people are unaware of the value of their belongings or are too busy to consider whether their current insurance policies are fit for purpose. Fine art and jewellery are often included in a general household contents policy but when it comes to particularly valuable items, separate insurance may be required.

Whether you are an avid art collector, have inherited valuable family jewellery or simply own for pleasure or investment, the team of specialist insurance brokers at SPF Private Clients will make sure your jewellery and art is valued correctly and insured adequately.

Underinsurance can be a problem, particularly with the fluctuations in the price of precious metals and gems or if an item has been in the family for years, so we can also assist with valuations. We work with trusted third-party providers to deliver valuations for single items, collections and full contents inventory.

- Fine art - SPF Private Clients can arrange comprehensive worldwide cover on an 'all risks' basis, even during transit. Bespoke cover options are available to meet your needs – agreed value, market value, restoration / theft recovery or first loss options. Full theft cover and depreciation or defective title cover are also available.
- Jewellery - Policies can be tailored to fit your lifestyle so you can enjoy your jewellery, rather than keep it locked away in a safe all the time. Precious jewels can be protected anywhere you choose to travel but we also make sure you don't pay too much for cover for jewellery you don't wear regularly or keep in a safe.

Crucially, these insurance policies enable clients to choose where their fine art or jewellery is repaired or replaced, depending on your preference.

We work with a panel of leading insurance providers to ensure we find the most competitive and comprehensive insurance for our clients, taking the stress out of finding the right cover.
